Leslie,

Thank you for touching base, its nice to see that some teachers actually care. I do plan to drop the class, I am making a few changes right now and no longer require that class. Thank you so much for your great teachings though. The first class when we were all sitting in a circle seemed more like group therapy than a class. You seem to be a great person and I think you will do very well with any career choice as you show your passion for your work very well and others can feel that.

The best of luck with everything,
Carlee

Hi Carlee,
I just wanted to send you a quick e-mail to touch base regarding the Job Search Class. You've missed the last two class sessions and I wanted to see if you are planning to drop the class. The past few weeks several assignments were due and I haven't heard from you. I look forward to hearing from you and I hope all is well.

Thanks.

Hi Manny,
Thank you so much for your e-mail. Apology accepted. :) I really appreciate your encouragement, too. It sounds like you have more than a full plate with work and classes. What you are doing now is definitely going to pay off in the future. In the mean time, I know that doesn't make the day-to-day challenges and responsibilities any easier. All that you are balancing right now is part of your story and says so much about you and what you are capable of. Stay the course!

Have a great weekend!
Leslie

Leslie,
I wanted to apologize for my demeanor in class. It is by no means a reflection on your abilities as an instructor, in fact I enjoy watching you teach. You are always upbeat and very positive. I have always said that you should have been a self help guru or motivational speaker.. Im always very tired Due to the fact that I work two jobs and I have a full class load. Just wanted to tell you that and I would have said it earlier but you were already gone.
Thanks
Manny
